

when it comes to seeking souls, extend leg morals and building up the kingdom of God, we are agreed. Personally I regard my fellow-pastors as elegant Christian gentlemen, and I do not propose to show any doctrinal differences to our fraternity. So, all that I publish in "Junior's" article intended to ridicule me and my church in the eyes of our fellow-laborers, will doubtless receive the silent scorn deserved.

As to our people being better able to meet in fidelity than others I would simply remind my readers of the fact that we have a large number of faith and no creed to defend except the Bible. We are not Calvinists; we are not Armenians; but we are simply Christians, and the word of God is our only rule of faith and practice. Every faithful in the world knows that this position gives us an immense advantage over our religious neighbors, and it is not strange that the various denominations in cities where a debate was to be held with infidelity have often noted in calling for one of our representatives to represent their common faith.

I do not know anything about a "Campbellite church." Never saw one. Have heard our people spoken of by this name occasionally, but not one of our 6,000 ministers or 1,000,000 communicants accept the title. Nobody but an ignorant, or a scornful will insist on applying the title to this great body of Christians. "Yung-station, slander, and unsupported statement" they become a modest, spiritually-minded, intelligent dupe of Bob Ingersoll.

Now my "Junior" friend, and all of your class will you be kind enough to bring the Christian church to the test, and see if we have ever honestly intended to meet your champion. Bring in your man. You can't bring him too quick to cut me. All we ask is time to complete the "Bible," so as to give every body a chance to hear the discussion. Let no man prevent you securing your man. A large number of public will delight in seeing you either back square down and out, or else face the music of debate. There may be lots of money in Ingersoll's way of sowing the seeds of mischief all over the country, but there is nothing better or more about it. I come to preaching that no pressure whatever can be brought upon him to either back square down or else face the music of debate. He is not in the business.

A POLITICAL IDOL.

Enthusiastic Reception of the High Priest of Protection

BY THE REPUBLICANS OF MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis' Big Hall, Holding 8,000, Crowded with a Delighted Audience, Many of Whom Paid $10 Each for Their Seats.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 29.—The visit of Gov. McKinley to Minneapolis yesterday nearly revived the scenes when the national republican convention was held here. The hotels were thronged throughout the day with visitors, and local enthusiasm has been thoroughly excited, so that tickets of admission to the exposition hall in the evening commanded prices that would have been astonishing if Patti was to sing.

The occasion of the McKinley meeting was his response to an invitation to address the annual meeting of the State League of Republican clubs and the meeting had been announced as the formal opening of the campaign. The league had practically fallen by the wayside since the last election, but the announcement that the delegates from clubs would be given tickets to hear the great exponent of protection had a magical effect and as a result clubs have been freely organized throughout the state during the week to such an extent that there were at least 2,000 delegates on hand against 900 last year. In addition, tickets were issued upon application in advance, so that when the time for the meeting drew near, despite the fact that the hall accommodates 8,000 people, every seat had been spoken for in advance, and a great scramble to secure admission by outsiders was going on, which became so bitter that it was arranged that the governor should speak at the West hotel upon his arrival in the morning, where he made a short speech. He was driven to the exposition hall, which had been thrown open to the public, where he addressed the league convention.

In the afternoon he was prevailed upon to talk to the school children. An effort was also made to get him to attend the opening of the Young Men's club in the New York life building, but he was obliged to refuse. This morning he will be driven to Hamline university, and then to St. Paul, where he will be given a public reception, leaving for Chicago at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Gov. McKinley arrived in the city at 8:35 a. m. An escort had met him at Chicago and had made the journey with him, but at St. Paul the party had been joined by Gov. Nelson, Lieut. Gov. Clough, and a dozen other dignitaries and prominent republicans. The party was escorted to the West hotel by the university students, 600 strong, who gave their college yells and sang a glee song. There were 5,000 people in the great exchange of the West hotel who nearly lifted the roof with their yelling.

In the evening, as early as 7 o'clock, the people began to throng into the exposition hall, and the 500 ushers had all they could do to seat the great throng. The rostrum from which Gov. McKinley was to speak was decorated with flags in the background, and on the stage was an anvil and anchor, symbols of manufacturing and commercial interests.

The procession that escorted Gov. McKinley at 8:30 o'clock consisted of the veterans of the Union league, the Flambeau club and university students.

When the exposition was reached there was a vast concourse of people at the entrance, which parted, and McKinley was greeted with great cheering as he passed through the lines arm-in-arm with Gov. Nelson up the stairs. As he entered the hall a scene of wild enthusiasm ensued, which lasted until the platform was reached. Gov. Nelson was given an ovation as he came forward to introduce the speaker of the evening. He realized that any further delay would be displeasing to the 8,000 people who had been in waiting for an hour, and was brief in his remarks. He was several times interrupted with applause, which was tremendous when he intimated that McKinley was likely to be the next presidential nominee.

It was 9 o'clock when Gov. McKinley came forward, and was again greeted with prolonged applause. He spoke nearly an hour and a half without oratorical flourishes, and notwithstanding his address was a discussion of tariff issues, enthusiastic applause occurred frequently.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

WASHINGTON, March 29.—In the senate today the resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Sherman instructing the judiciary committee to inquire whether the stimulation of the United States coin by other coins of like weight and fineness is made criminal by existing law, was laid before the senate; and Mr. Stewart proceeded to argue that the law on the subject was as ample and as specific as human ingenuity could provide.

"Well," broke in Mr. Cockrell, "suppose it is; it cannot hurt anybody to let the resolution go to the judiciary committee."

Mr. Stewart went on with his remarks. Previous to the demonstration of silver, he said, there could have been much counterfeiting of silver dollars, because there could be no profit in making coins of equal weight and fineness. The government had abdicated its right to coin silver, and he thought it was now time for it to resume the prerogative and furnish to the people the coin of the constitution. The government ought to do it, and had undertaken to do it, and now refused to do it at the bidding of the "gold constitution."

Mr. Sherman said that he was inclined to think that the existing law did not punish such counterfeiting; but there had been some rough exposure about it, and he thought it well enough to let the matter be examined by the judiciary committee. There was no doubt that more or less counterfeiting was going on, he hoped to only a small extent.

The resolution was then agreed to, after a sarcastic remark by Mr. Cockrell that it would be well to have a like examination made as to every financial measure passed while Mr. Stewart was a member of the senate, as that gentleman had not made any opposition to the demonetization act of 1873.

The senate, at 1:35, proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

The doors were reopened at 2:15 and legislative business was resumed.

The fortification appropriation bill was reported back from the appropriation committee by Mr. Call, who stated that he would not call it up until next week, as there were some amendments to be offered to it by several senators.

The famous McGarran claim was then taken up in the shape of a bill to refer it to the court of private land claims, and Mr. Morrill made an argument against it, on the ground chiefly that the McGarran grant, on which it is based, was a forgery. He protested against the bill as "steel trapped in favor of the claimant," and said that he regarded the claim as a "stupendous fraud" by several senators.

Mr. Hutton replied to Mr. Morrill's argument, and gave the reasons why, in his opinion, the bill should be passed. In the course of his argument he stated, as a matter of evidence in the case, that President Lincoln had told "Buddens Stevens one day that he was very much bothered about the McGarran case, and asked him whether he should sign the patent or not. Mr. Stevens' advice to Mr. Lincoln was to 'sign the damned thing.' Some time afterwards Mr. Lincoln sent word to Mr. Stevens that he 'had signed the damned thing.'"

Mr. Stoddard, the president's private secretary, had testified that the patent was signed and recorded. But the land office had suppressed it, and when years afterward Mr. McGarran obtained to hear of it his lawyer found that the two last pages had contained the signatures of the president and of the recorders.

Ought the two houses of congress, Mr. Hutton asked to hesitate giving a new trial to this old man, this claimant who had spent most of his life in advocating a claim, which by the claimant) not only believed to be right, but knew to be right?

Mr. George Ingersoll, as to the equities of placing on the United States the burden of accounting for the net value of the minerals extracted by the New Idria Mining Co.

Mr. Hutton replied that the government had allowed the New Idria Mining Co. to coin the very blood of McGarran into money to fight his claim.

Mr. Hutton added that the bill did not appropriate a dollar. It simply referred the matter to the court and instructed it to report its decision to congress.

Mr. Vilas took the floor, but yielded to a motion made by Mr. Pugh to proceed to executive business, and at 4:05 the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

HOUSE.
The loose paper expressed by a vote of 148 to 101—Mr. Burrows changing his vote to move a reconsideration—his opinion that Charles F. Joy was not elected to the seat he holds as a representative from the eleventh district of Missouri. But on the motion of Mr. Springer to lay on the table Mr. Burrows' motion to reconsider the quorum disappeared, and the house adjourned without seating O'Neill, the contestant for Joy's seat.

The division was evenly one on every line, but the following democrats voted with the republicans in favor of Joy: Bryan, Cooper (Tex.), De Armond (Mo.), Dunphy, Everett, Griffin, Hall (Mo.), Morgan (Mo.), Moses, Outwater, Ryan and Stacey—12.

The populists generally withheld their votes, but McKelgan added his vote to the republican column.

Before entering upon the consideration of the O'Neill-Joy case, which was done under an order from the committee on rules limiting debate to two hours and making the English-Hilborn case from the third district of California the next business under the same limitations of debate, the house passed a few private bills; also a bill to authorize persons required to give security to the United States to furnish the bonds of approved guaranty and security companies properly incorporated.

DAILY REPUBLICAN

R. E. HANSEN, J. W. F. CALHOUN,
HANSHER & CALHOUN, Prop'rs
DECATUR, ILLINOIS

Published at the Post Office at Decatur, Illinois, under No. 105 of the Post Office Department.

THURSDAY EVE, MARCH 29, 1894.

THERE are two good men on the Republican township ticket to every one on the Democratic ticket.

THERE are men on the Democratic ticket who are unfit to hold any office in the gift of the people, but there are no such men on the Republican ticket.

If the Democrats could elect one man
in Decatur township this spring that fact would be heralded broadcast as an evidence that the people endorse the Democratic administration and that the workingmen still favored the Democratic tariff policy.

The Review is trying to make somebody believe that Jim Hollinger will not get a half-dozen votes from the colored race. Does it expect the colored voter to cast his ballot for a party that believes that the colored race is not entitled to any political rights?

Compare Tickets.
The Republicans started into this campaign with the notion that they could elect "any kind of a ticket" this time.—Decatur Review.

In view of the fact that the Republican township ticket was made by the people themselves, at the primaries, and everybody had a fair chance to vote for or against any candidate for nomination,
the Review's statement lacks a good deal of having any force. The Republicans, at these primaries, cast within a small percent of the full party vote, so that everybody took advantage of the opportunity to express his choice. The result of the primaries was conclusive, save as to a candidate for collector. The Republican ticket was made fair, and the result is that there is not a man on the ticket whose reputation for honesty, sobriety, intelligence and ability to perform the duties pertaining to his particular office can be fairly questioned, and yet the Review would impose upon its readers the statement that it is "any kind of a ticket" thrown carelessly together on the theory that anybody could be elected on the Republican ticket this year.

Let any man who cares to be fair
about such things take the Republican ticket and compare the Democratic ticket with it and he will see very clearly which is the "any kind of a ticket." The Republican ticket was made, as before stated, by the voters of the party. The Democratic ticket was made by the Democratic bosses. The rank and file of the party was not consulted in the makeup. There are some good men on the Democratic ticket and there are some who are no more fitted to perform the duties of the offices to which they aspire than a setting hen is to determine the paternity or maturity of the chickens she hatches out and in addition to this there are men on that ticket
whose habits would disgracefully them.

The Republican ticket will not suffer
by comparison with the Democratic
"Bosses" ticket and the Review knows this as well as we know it. If it knows this why does it pursue the course it does in relation to the Republican ticket?
The reason is obvious. Because every Republican did not get the man of his choice on the ticket it hopes to play
upon the feelings of those who were enthusiastic and if possible secure some votes for the Democratic no use from that source.

It is not a question of candidates with the Review, however, for behind its action has the important feature of this election. It is simply this: The Democrats carried the state in 1892, and they know the importance of hiding their own at the spring elections. They want to return Illinois in the Democratic column at the next fall election, and nothing would help them more to accomplish this than to succeed at the spring elections in allowing that after the party has prostrated the business of the country and played havoc with the property and happiness of the laboringman, they still held their own at the spring election. It is for this reason that they have adopted all over the state the plan of campaign which the Review is pursuing. They hope to deceive a lot of voters on one pretext and another to help them out in this respect.

But no intelligent man, who has had enough of Democratic administration, will be deceived by these tricks. They all know the importance of condemning Democratic national and state policies at the spring elections, just as the people of New York recently did, where thousands of former Democrats voted with the Republicans at the spring election to condemn the national administration and elect over 600 supervisors to a list of above 200 Democrats, showing the state to stand in favor of the Republicans by 100,000 plurality. Every man who wants to change the policy of the government and who votes the Democratic ticket at the spring election, votes against his own interest. This fact should be strictly borne in mind by the voters of Decatur township.

Who's in the Hole?
President Cleveland is in the same position at this time, in relation to silver,
but the leaders of the party they elected in relation to that question. It will be remembered that the Democrats boasted that they would put Harrison in a hole

by sending a free coinage bill to him,
and every Democrat in Congress, including Carlisle, the present secretary of the treasury, and the New York Democrats voted for free silver with no higher object in view than to worry a Republican President, in the hope that if he vet-ed a free coinage bill it would result in the election of a Democratic President, who it was assumed would be pledged to free coinage, no matter who he might be.

It was a clear demonstration of putting patriotism out of the way, regardless of what such a course might cost the country, simply to gain a party advantage.

But it so happened that President Harrison was not put in "a hole," as the Sherman silver purchase bill was enacted
as a compromise measure, just as the Allison-Blair silver purchase act was enacted to head off free coinage in 1878.
The Democrats came into power, and the first act of the new administration was to call a special session of congress to repeal the silver purchase provision of the so-called Sherman act, which in due time was accomplished. The efforts of the Democrats, however, in trying to force free coinage upon the Republicans while they were in power, created a strong sentiment within the Democratic party in favor of the free coinage of silver, and what was a party trick on the part of the Democratic party leaders
has become a boomerang which has returned to put Mr. Cleveland and his party in the hole they dugged for others.
It is a clear case of falling into their own pit.

President Cleveland has in his power-son the Seigniorage bill, passed by a Democratic congress. One wing of his party pleads with him to sign it, the other pleads for a veto, and a serious split in the party seems imminent, all because the Democratic party was tricky instead of patriotic when it was out of power.

It is a noteworthy fact, too, that the split in the party is sectional, which bears testimony to the fact that the Democratic leaders, just as they did before the war, create among our people
by their tricks and demagogic sectionalism and discord, which renders it useless
and dangerous as a party when in power.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—In executive session yesterday afternoon the Chinese treaty was reported to the senate and laid on the table for deliberation. It appears that Mr. Dolph is the only member of the committee on foreign relations who opposed the bill. An amendment is said to have been made in committee, but the attempt will be made to have the treaty amended in the senate. Mr. Higgins, Delaware, moved that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the interference, but the motion was not passed, and the treaty is still held among the secretary's archives, although its text was made public several days ago.

MISS POLLARD'S SUIT

An "Expert" Witness Between the Horns of a Dilemma.

STILL ANOTHER LOVER ON THE STAND.

Leading Society Women of Kentucky Sign a Petition for Breckinridge's Impeachment—Dr. Paxton to be Prosecuted.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—In the Pollard-Breckinridge trial today Mr. E. N. Hay, who was on the stand at adjournment Tuesday, was recalled and his cross-examination as an expert in handwriting was continued by Judge Wilson for the plaintiff. Specific comparison of letters, Mr. Hay said, was the best test for detecting forgeries.

Under severe cross-questioning by Judge Wilson witness admitted that at a former trial in which he testified as an expert, he had given an opinion directly opposite to that recorded above.

Mr. Worthington, private secretary to Col. Breckinridge, was the next witness. He testified to finding the letter in dispute in Col. Breckinridge's office in Lexington, Ky., after a three days' search, which brought to light nothing else bearing Mrs. Pollard's signature.

The defense introduced a veritable surprise, almost a sensation, when it called Rankin R. Rosell, as the next witness. He is the young man who said in his deposition that Miss Pollard wanted him to take her to Chicago when they were engaged. Miss Pollard admitted the engagement. Mr. Rosell said he was 34 years old, and lived in Nicholasville, Ky. He resided in Cincinnati in 1885, and was employed as a clerk in a large dry-goods house. He knew Miss Pollard, and became acquainted with her in October or November, 1883.

Miss Pollard came in just at this point with her friend, Miss Ellis, and Rosell stopped and looked at her in a surprised way.

"I was employed in a dry-goods house at the time," he said, "and during one of the months named a lady called on me at the store and introduced herself as Miss Madeline Pollard, saying she had heard of me very often. She told me she wanted to go to the Wesleyan college and I went there with her."

"Did she say how she came to know you?" asked Maj. Shelby.

"Yes, sir, she said she had heard of me through her cousin, Miss Nellie Oliver."

Mr. Rosell told of going to the college with Miss Pollard, and how Miss Pollard told the principal, Dr. Brown, that Mr. Rosell, to whom she had introduced herself that day, was a personal friend of hers, and asked that permission be granted for him to call on her at the college.

The witness saw Miss Pollard three or four days after that in the college. He called there about twice a week on an average to see Miss Pollard, and most frequently saw her alone.

"At first had a great admiration for the young lady," said the witness, "nervously looking at his finger nails, which developed into love, and from love we became engaged."

Miss Pollard had told him, Mr. Rosell said, that she had engaged herself to Old Man Rodes to get money from him to secure an education, and that was how she came to be a pupil at Wesleyan college.

During the period of their engagement the witness said Miss Pollard more frequently came at the college than when others were present. Her manner was very affectionate.

"In what was that affection?" asked Maj. Shelby.

The witness hesitated in an embarrassed way before answering. Then he said: "By kissing and caressing." Then he added: "She has sat in my lap."

Miss Pollard rose in her chair and made a movement toward the witness. She appeared as if about to speak, but Mr. Corbitt pulled her back in the chair, and Rosell proceeded.

"When she sat in your lap were there any demonstrations of affection between you?" Maj. Shelby asked.

"There naturally was," said the witness. "I put my arms about her and kissed her."

The witness said he had decided to go to Chicago, and when he went to say good-bye to Miss Pollard she expressed regret that he was going and asked why he didn't take her with him.

"I said, 'Well, you want to go, under the circumstances, come along,' and she went upstairs and came down with her hat and cloak. That put me in a hole, and I told her that it was inconvenient for me to take her then, and that we had better wait until next June."

"Were you joking when you spoke about going away?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she say she had her trunk packed?"

"Yes, sir, she said that."

"How old was she at the time?"

"She always represented herself to be three years my junior. I was born in 1860, and she said she was born in November, 1863."

[Miss Pollard says she was born November 30, 1864.]

The deposition of Letcher Lusby, chief of police in Lexington, was read. He said he had heard of Lena Singleton as the keeper of a house of ill-fame. Her reputation was that of a public prostitute. Mr. Lusby had been employed by the Adams Express Co., in Lexington, and he was asked if during the time he was in the company's service James C. Rodes had expressed any money to any persons outside Cincinnati. Mr. Lusby said Rodes shipped money frequently to some young lady whose name he could not remember, who was at Wesleyan college, Cincinnati. Rodes said she was his niece.

W. T. Jones, a member of Lexington's board of Aldermen, deposed that he knew the family of President Brown, of Wesleyan college, and visited them frequently in the fall and winter of 1883, where he met Madeline Pollard. The deponent said Miss Pollard told him that Rodes was paying her tuition, but she did not intend to marry him. He was an ignorant old farmer, she said, and she expected to pay him back.

This was all of Alderman Jones' deposition, and the court adjourned until to-morrow morning.

Dr. Paxton's Explanation.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The health board yesterday received a letter from Dr. Paxton in reference to the filing of the marriage certificate of Col. Breckinridge to Mrs. Wing. The latter is dated Allegheny City, Pa., and states that the filing of the certificate was withheld at the request of Col. Breckinridge, who said that he did not want the marriage made public then. Dr. Paxton also makes the excuse that he was ill at the time and, further, that he did not know it was contrary to law not to file the certificate.

The health board is considering the advisability of procuring the passage of a bill through the legislature making it a misdemeanor to fail to file such certificates.

Lexington Women Want Congress to Impeach "Willie."

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 28.—A petition is being circulated here by the women asking congress to impeach Col. Breckinridge. Among the signers are Mrs. Cassius M. Clay, widow of Lincoln's minister to Russia; Mrs. Wm. Cassius Goodloe, widow of Hayes' minister to Belgium; Miss Laura Clay, champion of woman's rights in Kentucky; Mrs. Catherine B. Acres, Mrs. James B. Clay, Jr., and Mrs. James B. Clay, Sr., cousin and aunt of Col. Breckinridge's first wife; Mrs. Frank H. Hunt, Mrs. W. W. Bruce and others of Lexington's best society women. They bitterly denounce Breckinridge, and say if congress will listen to them he will not misrepresent Kentucky any longer.

Rev. Dr. Paxton to be Sued.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The board of health decided, yesterday afternoon, that the explanation made by Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton regarding his failure to record within the required time the secret marriage of Col. Breckinridge and Mrs. Wing, was unsatisfactory. The attorney of the department was instructed to bring suit against Dr. Paxton. Mr. Steinert, the health department's counsel, says that a suit could not be brought until Paxton, who is now in Pittsburgh, comes within the jurisdiction of the New York courts.

KILKENNY CATS.

A Lively Row at a Meeting of Freeman's Journal Directors Yesterday.

DUBLIN, March 27.—Another eventful meeting of the shareholders of the Freeman's Journal was held yesterday. The ceiling did not fall nor did the floor give way, as was the case Tuesday, but the meeting was attended with as much excitement and confusion as were caused by those mishaps. Mr. John Dillon denounced Timothy Healey's scheme of guaranteed dividends, characterizing it as unfair, unbusinesslike, and not altogether honest or honorable, and declared that this was the last day that he would ever serve as director. Mr. Healey talked with equal warmth and vehemence and vigorously denounced Mr. Dillon's bare-faced meddling in the board as the cause of all of the difficulties. Mr. Healey said Mr. Dillon's meddling were all the worse inasmuch as he had not a penny invested in the paper. Mr. Healey and Mr. Dillon were frequently interrupted and through out the speeches there were many exciting scenes.

Thomas Sexton, who presided, roundly scolded the directors for their lack of economy in the face of the fact that the paper was losing money. The majority of the directors sided with Mr. Healey in his controversy with Mr. Dillon.

As It Looks in London.

LONDON, March 28.—The Chronicle, commenting upon the report that President Cleveland has decided to veto the seigniorage bill, says that such action will almost certainly smash his party in the states west of the Mississippi river. The paper further says that it will depend upon the question of the new tariff restoring or not restoring the prosperity of the United States, whether the expected republican victory in November next will be succeeded by a republican presidential triumph in 1896. At present things look that way.

Suicide of an Ohio Capitalist.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound or a perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The trouble with most cough medicines is that they spoil the appetite, weaken digestion and create bile. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the contrary, while it gives immediate relief, soothes rather than impairs the assimilative organs.

STEWART BUREAU, of the county farm, who was in Decatur to-day, states that he expects to have considerable trouble with a charge whose name is given as Miss Anna Coleman. The woman talks in a rambling way about a trial, and mumbles that the trial will certainly come off if the witnesses can be secured. She was sent to the farm from Decatur. Her sister resides at Marion. It will doubtless be a case of wild insanity, which can be charged up to some man who betrayed the woman and then left her to shift for herself. She landed in the poorhouse for her time of trouble.

IT WAS A TREAT.

The Concert Given by the Catholic Knights at the Grand

A very large audience was at the Grand last night to enjoy the pleasing home entertainment given under the direct of the Social Rank of the Catholic Knights of America, who have an attractive room on North Park street. The proceeds of the entertainment will be about $350 and a good share of the money will be used to fit up the hall in elegant shape.

The program as published in these columns last evening was carried out. Goodman's band and augmented orchestra, directed by Prof. Robert Walter, delighted everybody by the selections given. Each was received with prolonged applause, especially the descriptive pieces, which have given the band fame and plaudits wherever they have appeared.

The vocal co., "The Ship that Carries me Home," was sweetly rendered by Miss Anna Brown, who was a companion by the orchestra. The encore was well deserved as was also the beautiful bouquet presented. Miss Brown has a rich voice of wide range which has been finely cultivated. Her selection was a gem.

Prof. William Nees gave a violin selection with Miss Mabel Smuck as pianist, and he did it so well that he was called back.

And then came the famous Arion Quartet, C. W. Montgomery, F. E. Bruno, R. W. Orlison and C. N. Brown, which club never fails to make a hit. They caught the audience last night and received encore after encore. The voices of the Arions are perfectly attuned and when they sing music entrancing swells the breeze.

Miss Josephine Laux, whose elocutionary accomplishments have frequently been mentioned in these columns, favored the audience with two selections. The first was a recitation, "The Gypsy Flower Girl of Spain," and the second was a solo, "December and May." The recitation demonstrated the natural gift of Miss Laux as an elocutionist, and throughout the reading which called for modulation of tone, somewhat tragic movements, and careful gestures, the audience was held as if under a spell—now pathetic, then happy and joyous and then exulting as the story progressed to the thrilling close. In every movement Miss Laux was the personification of grace which was made from the merit of the story, the chief charm of the selection. She received a warm encore and a large basket of flowers. Fresh laurels were added to Miss Laux when she gave the vocal number.

The band and the orchestra with the Arions went to Clinton this morning where they give an entertainment tonight.

Got an Answer.

Yesterday B. S. Tyler and E. F. McDonald had a discussion as to the probable damage the recent cold spell had on the oats crop. They were unable to agree, and they finally sent a telegram of inquiry to the superintendent of the Experiment Station connected with the Illinois State University at Champaign, asking if this freeze-up had ruined the crop. Here is the answer:

CHAMPAIGN, March 28.—B. S. Tyler, Decatur, impossible to say. B. S. Tyler, (Champaign) in fire cases. G. E. MORROW.

Decatur Has Found Him.

It appears from the Decatur papers that Mr. Al S. Morgan is a candidate for township collector in that city. When Mr. Morgan lived in Springfield his truck factory was pretty nearly Republican headquarters. If he is as lively a worker in campaign politics as he was here, he will make a "heap o' trouble" among the Democrats. The Republicans of Decatur have discovered him, and have found a man who never sleeps until the election is over.—Springfield Journal.

Electric Headlights.

The Citizens' electric cars are being equipped with electric headlights. Two were placed on No. 20 and the old ones will be replaced with the electric burners as soon as possible. Those on No. 20 are being generally noticed by pedestrians and Motorists John Wilson, of that car, is just beginning to realize that the headlights are what are attracting the eyes of the people, and not himself.

"Earl" Gardner Coming.

Karl Gardner, the sweet singer, comes to the opera house on Tuesday, evening April 3rd. Mr. Gardner will play the role of "Earl, the Prize Winner," a Turner who wins the first prize at a Turnfest, and defeats his companion, Herman Weissenbach. A pretty love story runs through the piece and a strong plot adds to the interest. Mr. Gardner has an excellent company to assist him in the representation of his new play, and a fine entertainment may be expected. The judgment of competent critics pronounces "The Prize Winner" Mr. Gardner's most successful venture.

April Weather.

Licks says: April will open with temperatures reacting into warmer, and during the 1st to 3rd, storms will prevail, with much rain. The cool to cold weather following the last storm in March, will not live way to the reactionary change to warmer until about April 2d and 3rd, at least that much time being required for storm conditions to develop and travel from the points of the beginning in the west. It will be wise to anticipate hail with any well defined storm from this time to the end of April.

II.

This communication appeared in the Chicago Inter-Ocean to-day.

DECATUR, Ill., March 27.—To the Editor.—If Coxey's army would have for their motto, "On to Washington to force the Senate to pass a bill that the tariff laws and the McKinley bill will remain as they are for another year's time," would soon have an army that would argue Washington, and even the United States. And soon the horizon would be darkened with the smoke of thousands of furnaces that are now idle. "Su-Do."

$1,000 Paid.

To-day Henry McClellan, secretary of Section 184, Endowment Bank, Knights of Pythias, received a draft of $1,000 from Chicago, drawn in favor of Miss Jennie Duffee, sister of the late Colonel O. M. Duffee, who died Feb. 10th. He was a member of Section 184 in this city, and Miss Duffee was made the beneficiary of the certificate. Mr. McClellan gave the draft to Miss Duffee this forenoon.

Lake City Notes
An important feature in the Spring election in the township in which Lake City is situated is a proposition to change the voting places of the township from Lake City to Dalton City. Dalton is in the township line while Lake City is nearer the center of the township, being 2 1/2 miles from the line. Dalton has the most votes and there is some doubt as to the result of the vote on the proposition, which is important to both villages.

The Republican candidate for supervisor is Geo. L. Siders and the Democratic candidate is T. F. Springer. Both reside in Lake City and both are good men, the indications are that it will be a close race, notwithstanding the fact that the Democrats have had some 50 majority in the township at previous elections.

The farmers complain that the oats and potatoes that have been planted have been frozen so badly that they will have to be replanted, and what worries them most is the fact that there are not oats enough to sight to seed the same acreage that has been sown. The freeze, however, may not have done as much damage as the farmers fear.

D. J. McAllister had his eye injured by a hedge thorn Monday. The eye is seriously hurt, but it is hoped the sight will not be permanently impaired.

Divided.
The street car boys are as yet undecided who they will support for alderman as their representative, but two of them have been suggested—Motorman John Wilson and Conductor Pete Brilly, with the chance largely in favor of the latter. John is setting his cap for another office.
